NEW YORK'S SENATOR-ELECT DIS-CUSSES POLITICS AND LEGISLATION.

Chairman Hanna and Others in Conference with Major McKinley-Balloting for Senator.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.-The Republicans of the State tendered a banquet to Thomas C. Platt, senator-elect from New York, to-night, at which were present all the Republican State officers, all the party leaders in the State and many Republicans of national importance. Covers were laid for nearly one thousand, while as many more looked on from the gatteries and listened to the speech making. Mr. Platt made it the occasion of his rormal acceptance of the senatorship to succeed David B. Hill. He said, in part:

"It is not without hesitation that I have again accepted the responsibilities of public office. Indeed, it seemed as though the temptation to do so had been put by and that the remainder of my life would have no other relation to public affairs than such as becomes every citizen. I shall be acquitted, I think, of any affectation about office-seeking and office-holding, but it is a fact that I have not been a candidate for the Senate. I have not asked any member of the Legislature to vote for me. I did not even intimate until after the caucus that I should accept the office if it were tendered. That it has come under these circumstances and with such generous expressions of good will and confidence from Republicans throughout the State makes it pleasing burden and a rich compensation for all that I have done and tried to do in my party's service. And so I shall go to Washington grateful to the Republican party, devoted to the State of New York, and earnest in resolution to exert whatever influence I may have or may acquire for the welfare of our incomparable country. "It is especially gratifying to re-enter the Senate coincidentally with the inauguration of a Republican President. The support given by the State of New York to Major McKinley's candidacy abundantly testified to the high hopes which our people base on his patriotic wisdom. The success of his administration will be the success of the Republican party, and no contribution that I can make to that great cause will be wanting

Sufficient time has passed since the November election to permit a close examination of its results. It cannot be said that they are wholly unsatisfactory. The bewildering programme of legislation proposed by Mr. Bryan obtained so great a popular support as to forbid the idea that agitation in its favor will be abandoned, and our Democratic friends who, without giving unqualified adhesion to Republican principles, were, nevertheless, constrained by their convictions on the money question to support the Republican candidates, should give soher consideration to this fact, "It is not yet certain that any plan for the relief of the treasury can pass the Senate as it will be constituted after the 4th of March. Capital will not invest, production will not increase, labor will not be adequately employed until laws are passed to insure the treasury against insolvency and to guarantee to the business interests of the country, a safe and reasonably permanent basis on which to operate. If the changes in the composition of the Senate now in progress fail to produce a majority that can hold together for the enactmen of such legislation, we shall have the same fight out of which we have just come to make again four years from now under probably less favorable conditions. The on which this possibility teaches to the sound-money Democrats and the duty it enforces upon them seem entirely clear. They can find no home in the Democratic party. Their presence there is not wanted, whereas with us it is held in just esteem. They must come into the Republican party, exert their due influence upon its politics and accept their share of the responsibility for its work. And, without abandoning any vital principle, which they would not ask or expect, we must seek in all we do to hold their confidence and support "The people do not want the Wilson bill patched up. They want it repealed and in its place their plain demand, to which the election of two successive Republican majorities in the House of Representatives sufficiently testifies, is for the enactment of an intelligent and consistent turiff based in venting the foreign producer of goods that compete with American goods from wholesaling his wares in the American market and compelling the American maker of such wares either to go out of business or to reduce the wages he pays to his labor. "If there is no other respect in which the country is to be congratulated upon the result of Mr. Cleveland's administration, it may be admitted that since the present secretary of state assumed the direction of our foreign affairs the position of our country abroad has improved. It has been deming of American interests in foreign lands does not necessarily involve disagreeable that the just influence of our country can be preserved without offense to our neighbors. I have had no fair opportunity to examine the text of the arbitration treaty or to consider the possibilities that may arise under its various provisions, but with the principle involved it seems as though all civilized men must be sympathetic. Briefly referring to the Cuban question, Mr. Platt said: "The attitude of our gov however, cannot always express the sympathies of the people. It has its treaties to observe and its code of public law to respect. Acts of intervention, moreover, involve responsibilities and these must be assumed with caution. We neither wish to govern Cuba nor to fight Spain, and no act of government should be performed that leads us in the direction of either of

The other speakers were as follows: Gov-Chauncey M. Depew, D. D. Woodmansee of Ohio, president of the National League of Republican Clubs, William Pitt Kellogg, of Louisiana. Lieutenant Governor Woodruff was the last speaker and the banquet was over shortly after 11 o'clock.

CANTON, O., Jan. 26.-National Chairman M. A. Hanna called on Major McKinley this evening. He came from Cleveland at 5:49 o'clock and will remain over until tomorrow. He had nothing to say when called on by reporters

Mr. Clarence Bowen, a prominent publisher of New York city, and an intimate friend of Major McKinley, was a visitor to-day. He said he was here on private business and his visit had no prominent political significance. Mr. Bowen lunched with the major and returned to New York on an afternoon train.

At noon five Brooklyn gentlemen called. The party consisted of Messrs. Walter B. Atterbury, R. Ross Appleton, Theodore B. Willis, city works commissioner, E. J. Kaltenbach and George Roberts, jr. Rohrer, of Redlands, Cal., who spoke in behalf of Judge McKenna; M. E. The reception will be to Cantonians in general who wish to bid Major and Mrs. McKinley good-bye. It will be under the auspices of the Business Men's Association, which will arrange details. WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 .- General Grosvenor, of Ohio, declines to-day to discuss the rumors from Ohio as to the probability that Governor Bushnell will appoint Lieutenant Governor Asa Jones to the vacancy in the Senate on the retirement of Senator Sherman, except to say that the sentiment in Ohio, as expressed in the newspapers, seemed to him overwheimingly in favor of Mr. Hanna. With regard to the rumor that Benator Sherman might reconsider his acceptance of the state port-folio in case Mr. Hanna was not appointed to succeed him, he expressed himself most "Mr. Sherman." CAMDEN, N. The appointments were made on the representations of directors, bondholders, stockholders and creditors of the concern, which has been in financial difficulty for some time. Life Insurance Company holds the first mortgage for $300,000. There is a second issue of $1,000,000 of bonds, of which $800,000 is held by John F. Beiz, an uncle of David G. The troubles of the company," said its egal representative, "are due partly to the legacies of debt from the old company, but mainly to the injurious effect on the business of the Raines law, which took away a large part of the trade, and involved the raising of considerable sums of money for payments of license fees in order to retain the balance." The receiver has been given authority by the court to continue the business so as to preserve the good will which is the company's most valuable asset.

He said the bank and its president. Mr. Usher, have been closely connected with the company, but that the latter's failure would not have affected the bank if the depositors had not become alarmed. The bank was in better condition than for some time past, but did not have the ready cash to meet the demands upon it. Examiner Van Vranken, of the banking department, who was snowbound at Norwood, reached Potsdam. > subscriptions to the relief fund. The Pabst Brewing Company, of Milwaukee, telegraphed Mayor Swift that it had sent $1,000 to help feed the hungry. The largest contribution so far made to the public relief fund was by the officials and employes of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, who raised $2,000. ### BREAKING SIBERIAN STONE.

Sixteen American Sailors Undergoing Punishment for Illegal Scaling.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 .- The World says:

Seaman Matthew Hunter is one of the crew of the American ship Conqueror, which has just arrived from Japan and tied up on the outside of the Atlantic dock, Brooklyn. Hunter shipped in May last out San Francisco on the American bark Witna for Vladivostock, where they found sixteen American sailors and seal fishermen who were prisoners of the Russian government, breaking stone on a fortification. Through the help of Mr. Smith, an American gun expert in the service of the Russian government, Seaman Hunter and three shipmates secured a short interview with four of the prisoners in the presence of Russian soldiers with fixed bayonets. The sealers slipped two letters to their friends in San Francisco up Hunter's sleeve. In the letters, which Hunter was permitted to read before sealing and mailing them, they describe their hardships and abusive treatment in a Russian prison and the injustice with which the Russian courts dealt with Their crime was clubbing seals on the Siberian coast. While their ship, the Golden Fleece, ran to sea to escape a storm, the sixteen men were captured, thrust into a room twenty by twenty, with a dozen Chinamen and Coreans and four Russians, and kept for two days without food. The dungeon was alive with vermin. Jan. 24, 1896, they were sentenced to five months' imprisonment. SOLVING THE REDMOND CASE.

Red Tape Now Thrown About the Department.

There is a bogie man at the police station

Superintendent Colbert heads the chorus that moves on tip-toe around the decrepit old building, ever and anon a "s-s-s-h-h-h" full-volumed as escaping steam, rushing across his lips, whereupon the keeneyed sleuths, marching in time with him, all follow his example and sibilate likewise. Then an intense stillness prevails, the sleuths all rolling their eyes ceilingward, till presently the chorus lunges forward, jerks heads about, and listens expectantly. The gentlemen who sleep over night in the collapse, for they cannot tell what it all portends. It is that air of mystery which breeds panic in any man's midriff.

The bogie man is the harmless reporter in search of news. In the bosom of the superintendent and likewise in the bosoms of of all secrets, and if the bogie man should get one inkling of that secret all would be

There is a clew in the Redmond murder case-that's the secret, and it is believed that the police have found the man who saw a man that knew a man that had mustache last Wednesday, perhaps the most important clew the police have obtained so far in their magnificent secret detective work. In one of the rooms at the station is or was a stranger, as mysterious as the Man with the Iron Mask-even more mysterious-for he is there and yet he is not there, according to the best information obtainable from the superintendent This stranger was dragged into prison behurry-up telephone message sent to the superintendent, who in turn commanded the down an embankment. Two persons wer operator to "send Old Bill and the top buggy" up to his house. "Old Bill" made th snow fly as he whirled the superintendent to the station, and the police officer, collarless in his haste, flopped out of the "top buggy" and in a trice of time was closeted with the mysterious stranger who may have seen a man that knew a man who had a mustache last Wednesday. Or, maybe, this stranger himself was a man who had a mustache once upon a time. Be that as it may, the world will never have more definite information than is here imparted, for anything further is embraced in the great secret which the superintendent and the sleuths carry in their breasts, and it will probably never be revealed. Inquiry upon inquiry, inquisitorial device upon inquisitorial device was tried on the superintendent in vain. He looked blankly and helplessly towards a distant wall, fearful that even his very glance might betray that secret of secrets. Was the man under arrest a suspect in the Redmond case? Nothing at all to say, nothing at all to say quoth the superintendent, falteringly. And the detectives echoed his words. there a man really under arrest? Nothing at all to say. Was there apt to be any developments? Nothing at all to say. And so it went the livelong day. Chief, wagon driver, telephone man, bicycle copper all had the same refrain, "Nothing to say, nothing at all to say.

This prisoner was brought in by Detectives Kinney and McGuff and was kept at the station till last night, when a private as he had come. Mr. Eldridge, who was robbed the night of the murder, was not even summoned to see if he could identify the suspect. That would hardly be in accordance with the ethics of artistic and high-class detective work.

To-day the coroner will hold the inquest in the Redmond case and he may get some more definite information than that which it is presumed the police may have, The little red tape which Superintendent Colbert wove and put into use when the Board of Safety allowed him two men on bicycles at night and one during the day time, has spread itself over the entire denames. Everything has to emanate from the office of the superintendent, or it does not emanate. A policeman don't dare open his mouth about the most trifling matter. He must now write out a report of anything he may have and send it to the superintendent's office and from there the public s given just what the department sees fit the public shall have.

The motion attacks the opinion itself, and claims to find in that document ample proof that the court never read the record of the case.
